

Bash-Scripting-Project1

1. Write a script printing total no of files and folders in a specific directory. The name of the dir will be given at the time of script execution.
2. Write a script package.sh which will check for the pkg availability, if pkg exists it should display the date on which date it was installed; if pkg is not present it should be automatically installed.
3. write a script whether directory exists or not?
4. Write a script to check whether given no is positive or not.
5. write the script printing the file statistics like inode no, user owner, total no of line, size of the file
6. Send a mail to the root@serverx if the used filesystem of the hardisk crosses 90%.
7. Send a mail to the root@serverx if 100%memory is utilized by the server
8. take a backup of a file in /etc with date extension to it.
9. Connect yourself to root@desktop by protocol sftp and download the file anaconda.cfg to your/tmp dir.
10. send the file on mail printing "ip and no of attempts of access" to your web server.
11. change the password of the users listed in the file to their own name.
12. create users taking file as argument...
13. ping to all m/e in your network.
14. check given user is your system user or not.
15. check whether apache server is running or not on your.m/c.